IOT IN MANUFACTURING

IOT is transforming the way organization in different industries are doing business including the manufacturing companies. Till now technology has been used primarily for running the business and managing manufacturing operations for automating process and for collecting data related to assembly jobs.

In any typical manufacturing process other important data about different assets and resources also get generated at each of production line which generally goes unnoticed or is not captured this data is related to the manufacturing asset and resources which may include operational data asset, health, performance, usage, maintenance, logistics, resource utilization along with information on some key external factors temperature, humidity, input material, transportation etc..

IOT solution platform can be used to capture such data easily and to different assets of a manufacturing process and improving operational efficiency manufacturing companies have started realizing that they can gain better visibility into their operations and significantly improve them by providing a digital identity to their physical assets with IOT-based solution.

IOT IN AEROSPACE

In the aerospace industry the adoption of IOT is transforming both ground and air operations. For instance aerospace manufacturers are exploring IOT to develop and deploy robust analytical strategies to improve operational efficiency. Extensive connectivity delivered and enable effective human-to-human and human to machine coordination, cooperation, communication and interoperability. Certainly these are the main ingredients of efficient there are the main ingredients of efficient and profitable operations in the aerospace sector and might be staying behind your competition if you are not making the right investment in these areas.

The aerospace has been struggling with perennial issues that undermine the success of aircraft manufacturing. The biggest concern in the aerospace industry manufacturing delay's most airplane production programs are consistently late to market for up of three years and longer due to manufacturing and operational inefficiencies.

IOT IN DEFENCE

In the modern military world operations are becoming more complex and unpredictable. Using IOT can help defence and military personnel take suitable action in increasingly pressured environment. Here are the most important applications of IOT in defence and the military.

- Gathering battlefield data

IOT enables armed forces to survey the battlefield with unmanned aerial drones that are equipped with cameras and sensors. These drones can capture live image feed the landscape and location of the enemies and send real time data to the command center. Using this data officers can keep an eye on the battlefield and make informed decision at time.

- Monitoring soldier's health.

Another application of IOT in defence and the military is knowing the health status of a soldier. This is done by placing sensors in the soldier's cloth to track or centrally monitor their physical health and mental health. Sensors can monitor heart rate levels.

temperature and thermal distribution as well as some behavioural attributes, like speech patterns.

Equipment and Vehicle Fleet Management

Regular maintenance of military vehicles and efficient transportation of communication and troops is important for a successful military operation. Connected sensor and analyser assisted by IOT technology can help in tracking supplies from the source of where they are required on the battlefield.

Identifying the Enemy

Enemies can access military bases with stolen badges or appear as civilians for sensor can capture iris, fingerprints and other biometric data to determine the identity of a person and find the individual's can pose a threat.

Smart bases

IOT sensor and devices can be incorporated into military bases to improve the efficiency performance and convenience of assets and services on a military base it can help enhance the compatibility and output of military bases.

IoT IN AGRICULTURE

There are many emerging technologies in agriculture that seem very promising for the future of farming IoT has once an emerging agri technology and now it has taken a mainstream position by wider adoption IoT in the agriculture by the simplest of definition is just that 'Internet controlling things'.

Robotics in agriculture

Since the industrial revolution in the 1900's automation got more advance to ethendly handle sophisticated task and increase production with increasing demand and shortage of labour across the globe agriculture robot's or commonly known as agribot's are starting to gain attention among farmer. Crop production decreased by an estimated 28 billion tons ($31 billion)

Rud

Drones in agriculture

Agriculture is one of the major sector to incorporate drone. Drones equipped with sensor and cameras are used for imaging mapping and surveying farms. These are ground-based drones and aerial drones. Ground drones are both that heavily the hold on wheels.

Remote sensing in agriculture

Remote sensing in agriculture is revolution. The very data is acquired from different nodes in a farm IoT-based remote sensing utilized sensor placed along with the farms. Like weather situation for generation data which is transmitted to analytical tool for analysis.

The transportation and logistics sector is at the core of economies around the world. It acts as medium that facilitates the movement of people goods & production from one location to another is containers alone found in the supply chain and with the global consumer class expected to grow by 35% by 2030 demand on the transportation sector are expected to increased this is driving a push on how the industry can take bigger challenges which center around visibility agilitized and sustainability.

IoT in the transport and logistic industry is offer collect telematics which is the foundational technology behind fleet tracking and fleet management software data capture devices installed on vehicles or mobile asset can transmit critical information to a web-based software platform secure cellular network.

Fleet management software

The task of gathering, storing, processing and presenting data captured from source such as vehicle location sensor and mobile apps. This is the part through which data is transformed into actionable information and it's important.

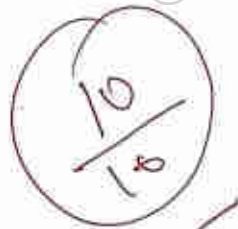

Drive mobile applications

Digital transformation is one of the most effective ways to drive change across our operation in transport and logistics. Including there are a number of mobile applications that can be used to share information and create work flow that simplify driver activities.

Types of Production

There are 4 different types of production which are commonly used.

- (1) Unit or Job Type of Production.
- (2) Batch Type of Production.
- (3) Mass Production or Flow Production.
- (4) Continuous Production or Process Production.

(1) Unit or Job Type of Production.

This Type of Production is commonly observed when you produce single unit of a product.

A typical example of the same will be tailored outfits which are made just for you.

It is one of most common types of products used because it is generally used by small businesses like restaurants, individual product providers and individual service providers.

is also type of Production used by Very Premium Companies like Harley Davidson and Dell-Harley Davidson has lot of accessories which can be Customized, and which Suit the Individual. Same way, you can design your own Dell laptop on their website with the given Specifications.

Features of Unit Production or Job Production:

- Depends on Lot & Skill.
- Dependency of manual work rather than Mechanical work.
- Customer Service and Customer Management play very important role.

(2) Batch type of Production.

It is one of the types of Production most Commonly used in Consumer durables, FMCG or other Such Industries where there are large variety of Products with Variable demands.

Manufacturer already knows the number of unit he needs to manufacture and they are manufactured in one batch.

Example of Batch Production:

LG has many different types of home appliances products in its portfolio. It has to manufacture all these different variants of the same type of product. There would be 10-20 types of mixer grinders alone in the product portfolio of LG home-appliances. Thus, a company like LG manufactures these variants via Batch Production.

Features of Batch Production:

- Production is done in Batches.
- The total number of units required is decided before the batch production starts.
- Once a batch production starts, stopping in midway may cost high.
- Demand plays a major role.

Mass Production or Flow Production

One of the best examples of Mass Production is manufacturing process adopted by Ford.

Mass Production also known as Assembly Line Production. It is one of most common type of products used in Automobiles and other industries in Continuous production is required.

An Assembly line typically focus on specialization. There are multiple workstations installed and the assembly line goes through all workstations turn by turn.

As a result, Production become productive & efficient.

Features of Mass Production:

- It is used to dole out huge volumes of Product.
- It is used only if the product is standardised.
- Demand does not play role; production capacity determine the success of Mass production.

Continuous Production or Process Production

In Mass Production, both machines and human work in tandem. In Continuous production, most of work is done by machines rather than humans. (24x7 hours & 365 days in a year).

A good example of this is Brewing. Brewing takes a lot of time & production is important.

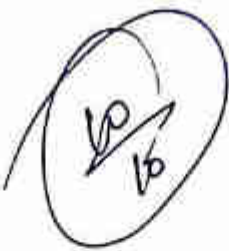

Features of Continuous Production:

- Majority of work done by machines rather than humans.
- Work is continuous in nature. Once production starts; it cannot be stopped otherwise it will cause huge loss.
- A Very controlled Environment is required for Continuous production.

TRANSFORMATIONS

Computer Graphics provide the facility of viewing object from different angles that is

- 1) Front Elevation
- 2) Side Elevation
- 3) Top plan.

Cartographers can change the size of charts and topographical maps so if graphics images are code as number. the number can be stored in memory. these numbers are modified by mathematical operations called transformations. the purpose of using computer for drawing is to provide facility to user to view the object from different angles, enlarging or reducing the scale or shape of object called as transformation.

Two essential aspects of transformation are given below:

- 1) each transformation is a single entity. it can be denoted by a unique name or symbol
- 2) it is possible to combine 2 transformations, after connecting a single transformation is obtained

eg: - A 4 transformation or translation transformation produces looking the combination of two 4 & 0.13 so it is obtained by combination to properly

There are 2 complementary parts of view to describe
Object transformation

- 1) Invariant transformation the object itself is transformed relative to the coordinate system as background the mathematical statement of the viewpoint is defined by geometric transformation applied to each point of the object
- 2) Coordinate transformation the object is held stationary while the coordinate system is transformed relative to the object this effect is achieved through the application of coordinate transformations.

An example that helps to distinguish these two viewpoints the scenario is an automobile against a scene background we can simulate

- * Moving the automobile while keeping the background fixed
- * we can keep the car fixed while moving the background scenery

Translation:—

It is the straight line movement of an object from one position to another is called Translation. Here the object is positioned from one coordinate location to another.

Translation of point

To translate a point from coordinate position (x, y) to another (x', y') we add algebraically the translation distance T_x and T_y to original coordinate.

$$X_1 = x + T_x$$

$$Y_1 = y + T_y$$

Dr. L. Moses Daniel, M.B.A., Ph.D., P.D.SCA, 2011
Principal
Nehru College of Management
Nehru Gardens, Thirumalayampalayam
Coimbatore - 641 105

The translation pair (T_x, T_y) is called Shift Vector. Translation is a Movement of object without deformation. Every position or point is translated by same amount. When the straight line is translated then it will be drawn using endpoints.

Scaling: —

It is used to alter or change size of object. It changes to show every scaling factor. There are 2 scaling factors that is to be a function of the position of the original position to a new position. If the scaling factor is less than 1 then the value of coordinates after scaling will be x' and y' .

If the position to be enlarged to have a original size then $x' = x \cdot k$ and $y' = y \cdot k$ are not equal then scaling will come into play and change is called the product.

If scaling factor less than one then the size of the object will be reduced if scaling factor one higher than one then the size of the object will be enlarged.

If x' and y' are equal it is also called as uniform scaling if not equal then called differential scaling. If scaling factor with value less than one will move the object close to coordinate origin while value higher than one will move position rather far away.

Rotation :-

It is a process of changing the angle of the object rotation can be clockwise or anticlockwise. In rotation we have to fix some the angle of rotation and rotation around which point is the rotation is the point of rotation about which object is rotated

Types of Rotation :-

1) Anticlockwise

2) Clockwise

Dr. E. Moses Daniel, M.A., Ph.D., PGDCA, PGD
 Principal
 Nehru College of Management
 Nehru Gardens, Thirumalayampalayam
 Coimbatore - 641 105

The positive value of the angle of rotation is called as counter-clockwise or negative value of the angle of rotation is called as clockwise rotation the object is rotated through some part of object is rotated by some angle

Through line it is rotated by the segment with some angle and arbitrary line between endpoints

Polygon it is rotated by through every vertex using same rotational angle

Translation it is rotated by superimposing of the shape and drawing of same at a.c. position

Circle it can be obtained by center by specified angle

Reflection: — It is a transformation which produces a mirror image of an object. The mirror image can be either about x -axis or y -axis. The object is rotated by 180° .

Type of Reflection: —

- 1) reflection about x -axis
- 2) reflection about y -axis
- 3) reflection about an axis perpendicular to xy plane and passing through origin
- 4) reflection about line $y = x$

- Reflection about x -axis: — The object can be reflected about x -axis with following matrix

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & 0 & 0 \\ 0 & -1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

- Reflection about y -axis: — The object can be reflected about y -axis with following matrix

* Reflection about an axis perpendicular to xy plane and passing through origin

$$\begin{bmatrix} -1 & 0 & 0 \\ 0 & -1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Reflection about line $y=x$. The object may be reflected about the line $y=x$ with the help of following matrix

$$\begin{bmatrix} 0 & 1 & 0 \\ 1 & 0 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Shearing : —

It is transformation which changes the shape of object the sliding of layers of object occurs the shear can be one direction or in two directions
Shearing in the x direction : In this horizontal shearing sliding of layers of object occurs the shear can be in one direction or in 2 directions the homogeneous matrix for shearing in the x direction is shown below

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & 0 & 0 \\ sh_x & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Shearing in the y direction : here shearing is done by sliding along vertical or y axis

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & sh_y & 0 \\ 0 & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Shearing in x-y direction: - here layers will be staked in both x as well as y. direction

Computer graphics provide the facility of viewing object from different angles that is view

Cartographer can change the size of charts and topographics images are used as numbers. The numbers can be stored in memory those numbers are modified by mathematical operation called transformation. The purpose of using computer for drawing is to provide facility to user to view the object from different angles. Enlarging or reducing the scale or shape of object called as transformation.

1. Each transformation is a single entity. It can be denoted by a unique name or symbol.
2. It is possible to combine two transformation after connecting a single transformation is obtained eg: A is transformation of translation the A transformation perform scaling. The combination of two is C: AB so C is obtained by concatenation property.

There are two complementary points of view for describing object transformation

1. Geometric Transformation: The object itself is transformed relative to the co-ordinate system or background. The mathematical statement of this viewpoint is defined by geometric transformation applied to each point of the object.

2. Co-ordinate Transformation. The object is held stationary while the co-ordinate system is transformed relative to the object. This effect is obtained through the application of co-ordinate transformations

An example that helps to distinguish these two viewpoints the movement of an automobile against a scene background we can simulate this by.

* We can keep the car fixed while moving the background scenery.

TRANSLATION

It is the straight line movement of an object from one position to another is called translation. Here the object is position from one co-ordinate location in another.

TRANSLATION OF POINT

To translate a point from co-ordinate position (x, y) to another (x_1, y_1) we add algebraically the translation distances t_x and t_y to original co-ordinates

$$\begin{aligned} x_1 &= x + t_x \\ y_1 &= y + t_y \end{aligned}$$

The translation pair (t_x, t_y) is called shift vector

Translation is a movement of object without deformation. Every position or point is translated by same amount. When the straight line is translated then it will be drawn using endpoints.

ROTATION

It is a process of changing the angles of the object. Rotation can be clockwise or anticlockwise. For rotation we have to specify the angles of rotation and rotation point. Rotation point is also called pivot point. It is point about which object is rotated.

TYPES OF ROTATION

1. Anticlockwise
2. Counterclockwise

Dr. E. Moses Daniel, M.A., Ph.D., P.D.S.A., J.C.P.T.
Principal
Nehru College of Management
Nehru Gardens, Thirumalayampalayam
Coimbatore - 641 105

The positive value of the pivot point rotates an object in counterclockwise. The negative value of the pivot point rotates an object in a clockwise. When the object is rotated, then every point of object is rotated by same angle.

Straight line:- It is rotated by the endpoints with same angle and redrawing line between endpoints.

Polygon:- It is rotated by shifting every vertex using same rotational angle.

Curved line:- It is rotated by repositioning of all points and drawing of curve at new positions.

Object :- It can be obtained by vector by specified angle.

Ellipse :- An ellipse can be obtained by rotating major and minor axes an ellipse by the specified angle.

SCALING

It is used to alter change size of object. The change is done using scaling factors there are two scaling factors. That is s_x in x direction & s_y in y direction. If the original position is x and y . Scaling factors are s_x and s_y then the value of co-ordinates after scaling will be $x \cdot s_x$ and $y \cdot s_y$.

If the picture to be enlarge to twice its original size then $s_x = s_y = 2$. If s_x and s_y are not equal then scaling will occur but it will elongate or distort the picture.

If scaling factor less than one then the size of the object will be reduced. If scaling factors are higher than one then the size of the object will be enlarged.

If s_x and s_y are equal it is also called as uniform scaling. If not equal then called Differential scaling.

If scaling factors with values less than one will move the object closer to co-ordinate origin while higher than one will move co-ordinate position further from origin.

SHEARING

It is a transformation which changes the shape of object by sliding of layer of object occur. The shear can be in one direction or in two sections.

Shearing in the X direction in this horizontal shearing sliding of layer of object occur. The shear can be in one direction or in two directions the homogeneous matrix for shearing in the X direction is shown below

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & 0 & 0 \\ S_x & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Shearing in the direction - Here shearing is done by sliding along vertical OY axis

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & S_y & 0 \\ 0 & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

Shearing in X-Y direction - Here layers will be slid in both X axis as well as Y direction

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & S_x & 0 \\ S_y & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

REFLECTION

It is a transformation which produces a mirror image of an object. The mirror image can be either about x axis or y axis. The object is rotated by 180° .

Types Of Reflection

1. Reflection about x axis
2. Reflection about y axis
3. Reflection about an axis perpendicular to xy plane and passing through origin.
4. Reflection about line $y=x$

→ Reflection about x-axis: - The object can be reflected about x axis with follow matrix

$$\begin{bmatrix} 1 & 0 & 0 \\ 0 & -1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$

→ Reflection about y-axis: - The object can be reflected about y axis with follow matrix

$$\begin{bmatrix} -1 & 0 & 0 \\ 0 & 1 & 0 \\ 0 & 0 & 1 \end{bmatrix}$$
